

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a web server having software modules integrated into the web server, supporting different communication means. At least one first software module comprises a first means for producing an automatic functionality and a second means for the direct access to a transport layer.